

War World
By Dr. Charles M. Knapp

THE PRESIDENCY OF THE UNITED STATES: This week the American people are still trying to adjust themselves to the fact that it is Harry S. Truman and not Franklin D. Roosevelt who is president of the United States. President Roosevelt's death last week was a great shock not only to this nation but to all those who were her allies.

The only President to have been elected four times to the presidency was the only President most of our fighting men consciously had ever known. That President also was the only President of the United States whom most foreign statesmen had ever negotiated with personally. Thus there has been both nationwide mourning and world-wide questioning of the future policies of the American government.

It is highly improbable that there will be any material deviation from the strategy which long has been planned by the Army and the Navy for the prosecution of the wars to successful conclusions. That there may be changes in the personnel of the State Department which must conduct our foreign relations from now on is almost as likely. That Congress, through the Senate, will exercise far more influence upon the shaping of foreign policy is even more certain.

That the death of President Roosevelt will affect the nation's policies must be conceded, but it is not so easy as some commentators would make it to anticipate what these differences will prove to be.

THE WAR IN EUROPE: American troops now stand practically as close to Berlin as the Russians who have been stalled for many weeks on the Oder River line. Units of the American Ninth Army have established bridgeheads across the Elbe, at several places, according to the latest rumors coming from Sweden.

Certain it is that the First and Third Armies have cut across the last remaining main highways connecting the Baltic plain with the mountainous south of Germany and Austria and have almost reached the Czechoslovakian frontier and a juncture with the Russian forces within that country. Thus the German forces have been divided by the Allied drive across central Germany from the Rhine to the Elbe.

They have been driven back into pockets against the North and the Baltic seas, into the defenses of the ports of Emden, Bremen and Hamburg, as they were into the Atlantic ports of France. Cut off and now surrounded on the north by the drives of the First and Third U. S. Armies and on the west by the First French Army and on the east by the Russians driving up the Danube from Vienna and Czechoslovakia are such German forces as may have been moved there to put up a last desperate resistance in that rugged, mountainous region around Hitler's hide-out at Berchtesgaden.

The Allied drives across Germany in the past two weeks have moved at phenomenal speed. Here and there the disorganized Germans have fought desperately and savagely but in vain against numbers and against superiority in the air and on the ground. Once again have come reports of the Germans using anti-aircraft gunfire against ground troops. Pockets of German resistance in the Baltic ports and in Berlin and in the mountainous south may hold out for a long time yet, but by and large the mobile armies of Germany will have been destroyed within a couple of weeks, largely through being made prisoners of war.

THE PACIFIC WAR: American troops are having to fight as they did on Iwo Jima to make headway against the Japanese who had dug in on the southern, hilly part of Okinawa. Several Japanese air raids have been aimed at the Allied fleet units off that island. They have inflicted some damage, but they, themselves suffered far more.

Assignments

Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, head of the University Political Science department, has accepted an invitation from the State department of the United States to participate in the San Francisco world security conference.

Dr. Vandenbosch, who has been on leave from the University since September, 1941, except for brief intervals, serving in various special governmental assignments, left for Washington Monday to join the United States delegation.

Services Not Disclosed

The nature of his services at San Francisco was not disclosed, but he is expected to serve in an advisory capacity.

Dr. Vandenbosch first was granted leave from the University in 1941 to serve with the Office of Strategic Services in Washington, and again in the fall of 1942, this time with the State department. He served until July, 1944, by the Office of Strategic Services and sent to India and Ceylon on a special mission.

University President Herman L. Donovan stated, "It is a very great compliment to Dr. Vandenbosch to be called to the conference. It is a recognition of his excellent scholarship and ability. We are very proud that we have a leader of that kind at the University of Kentucky."

Parley Prevents Teaching Here

The San Francisco assignment will keep Dr. Vandenbosch away from the University for the remainder of the current spring quarter.

Pop' Acquited
Of Murder Charge

William T. (Pop) McFattion, 81, whose candy and fruit stand is well-known to University students, was acquitted Wednesday on a charge of murder by County Judge W. E. Nichols.

McFattion had testified in his examining trial that he shot William Simms, Negro, after Simms had attempted to rob him on April 5 on South Upper street.

According to City Detective Sam Suddith, evidence upheld McFattion's contention that Simms had attempted to rob him. Also, Suddith said that Simms had told conflicting stories concerning the shooting, and had failed to identify McFattion as the person who shot him, before his death.

When this advertisement appeared recently in "Politika," leading newspaper of Yugoslavia's capital, it wasn't meant as a joke nor was it buried in the paper for the sake of entertainment. The woman who was asking the return of a shoe, old and patched as it was, needed that single shoe as much as she needed food. The unfortunate lot of losing it was hers, and she had no others to substitute.

Five years ago enemy forces invaded the homes of people such as this typical woman and millions of innocent victims were robbed of everything they possessed, in most cases the very clothes they were wearing. It was necessary to patch and repair the clothes they were fortunate enough to keep, and often with paper or straw as reinforcements for a worn out article of clothing, perhaps these mistreated peoples went through winter after winter.

University students have been given the opportunity to help by their contributions to the United National Clothing Collection this past week, and will be called upon again next week when Major Board continues the drive for clothing on the campus.

fraternity man, and each member of the faculty will be asked to look through old drawers and attics to find garments that are no longer of any use. They may be outdated, they may even be ripped in a few places—but if they are substantial, the little boy in France who is sharing a shirt with his seven other brothers, will find it a most welcome gift.

More than 125,000,000 people are in liberated or to be liberated nations of Europe and of these more than 30,000,000 are children. Life and health is involved in this national crisis, but it has been seriously affected already by need for adequate clothing. Tuberculosis, typhus, and other dread diseases have spread rapidly among Italians, Bulgarians, Russians, Hungarians, Chinese and elsewhere among the victims of the Axis aggressors.

Perhaps your old sweater will help a Belgian child, who must stay at home while his mother washes the one shirt the family owns.

Perhaps a pair of shoes that are now too small for you will keep a child in Holland from deforming his feet because of the crude shoes he has been wearing.

In occupied Europe almost as many people have died from exposure due to the lack of sufficient clothing as have died from starvation.

Harpy's Bazaar

By Jane Clark

Every day, hand in hand—you and your purse. If you're the "everytthing but the kitchen sink" variety, you are in for a hay-day. The new bags are bigger and better, and full of extra room.

The newest and most convenient type is the elbow bag. It's really nothing more than a large piece of cloth folded and stitched in the right places with two corners tied to form a loop which hangs over your arm—at the elbow. It leaves both hands free for books and bundles, and it is almost impossible to lose it. The best part of all is that these bags will be made to match cotton dresses and hats.

Band-Box Bags

The popular band-box bag is being remodeled for summer with gay cotton covers in materials to match dresses, hats, blouses, or gloves.

Still another favorite held over by popular demand is the drawstring pouch which can be found in either over-the-shoulder or wrist length styles. Why not whip out your needles and knit or crochet one?

Buy or Make Them

All three of these bags can be either bought or made, and they do wonders toward turning a commonplace dress into an extra-special outfit. What's more, they are all made of washable materials and can be kept looking like new all summer.

So if you're in need of an eye-catching accessory to liven up last summer's dresses—for you, it's in the bag.

1918 Armistice

Leo M. Chamberlain has announced that the University faculty and student group will cooperate with the American Legion's community plan for the celebration of victory in Europe. The plan includes a general meeting on Stoll field or in Alumni gymnasium, depending upon weather conditions. As soon as the Man O'War post of the Legion completes its plans, the University will issue instructions to students and faculty about the campus procedure on V-E day.

General down-town celebration of the 1918 armistice was a frenzied celebration as described in the Leader. At 1:47 in the afternoon of November 11, 1918, the flash of the armistice negotiations was posted in the newspaper window. Christ church's chimes tolled the doxology; sirens and bells in the police and fire stations sounded; railroad whistles from the Union station screamed. The Leader said: "The torrent of feeling, so long pent up in the hearts of the people, broke loose and ran riot for a full and glorious 24 hours."

General opinion of reaction to V-E day in this war does not seem to run toward displays of "pent up feeling." On the campus, at least, the downfall of Germany will be the signal for renewed effort toward finishing the other half of the world war and for making plans for a lasting peace.

Pat Burnett Chosen To Succeed Fisher

Patsy Burnett of Lexington has been elected president of the Freshman club, to succeed Warren Fisher who has entered the service.

At the meeting Tuesday night, Dr. Alberta Server of the Spanish department will speak to the club on South America. The club is for all freshman and ASTRP students on the campus. The meetings are at 6:30 p.m. in the Card room of the Union building.

The Lowe-Down

By Dick Lowe

Sixteen major league clubs began the fourth wartime baseball season Tuesday before approximately 150,000 fans. It is a little early for predictions but it is concluded that it will not be another all-Si. Louis year. The Cincinnati Reds, favorites of most of the population in this part of the country, are supported by most of the sport's authorities as the probable winners of the National league battle. The Detroit Tigers, runners-up to the St. Louis Browns last year, are picked as the probable holders of the 1945 American league title.

This year as well as last year will bring many new names and faces to the grand American sport since the draft and war years, as well as the old plague of injuries have deprived many clubs of the best material. Pete Gray, the one-armed wonder of the St. Louis Browns, has brought new life and spirit to the game. This player has overcome one of the greatest handicaps to become a better than average ball player.

The saddest part of the new season was the postponement of Monday's presidential game in Washington which, for the past 12 years, had been opened with President Roosevelt throwing out the first ball. The game has lost one of its greatest backers and enthusiasts.

Nationwide resumption of horse racing by May 10 with certain limitations was an inspiration for the race followers although it was emphasized that conditions may arise to delay the reopening. The conditional go-ahead was announced Monday by the director of the Office of Defense Transportation but the date of the lifting of the ban has not been decided.

President Truman declared that he had no plans for the lifting of the ban against horse racing when consulted at his first news conference.

It was announced however, that all three of the classic races of the racing world, the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, will be run, probably within the first month after the ban.

Churchill Downs officials are all set for the running of the annual Kentucky Derby and are awaiting only the official signal of resumption. The date has not yet been set but it is concluded that the Kentucky Derby will be run this year.

Coach Len Miller, athletic coach at Morehead State Teachers College, has been reported as critically ill in the St. Joseph infirmary at Louisville.

Coach Miller is a graduate of UK and a former assistant football coach at the University in 1932 and '33 under Harry Gamage. He has been connected with Morehead since 1935.

The 1944-45 basketball season ended only a month ago and already Coach Adolph Rupp has his eyes on the coming season. He has his hopes on an even better team than he coached this season and is out scouting for the material. (Most coaches would be satisfied with a team that could even equal the team that played in the blue and white uniform.)

Coaching basketball is supposed to be only a five-month job but to the Kentucky coach it is a year around assignment. The latest report of his whereabouts was that he was in Illinois talking to an all-state player who could bolster the Wildcats in the coming season.
